"LA CIGALE" will be a grand effort of the dramatic society to prove that they have real talent in their midst. The cast is a strong one and is rehearsing nearly every night and as the members of the company are evidently using their best efforts to make the representation a perfect one, there is little doubt but that on June 30th and July 1st, the playgoers of Edmonton will show their appreciation of the efforts of the society.

A ROUSING meeting was held in Oliver's committee rooms last night, of Young Albertans, and Oliver's supporters from Edmonton, South Edmonton, and Albert, Stony Plain, Sturgeon, Poplar Lake and other places. A series of campaign meetings were arranged as will be seen by advertisement in another column, and others will be held, to all of which the conservative candidate is invited to send representatives.

THE Spider Web entertainment held on Tuesday evening was most enjoyable and successful. A short programme of vocal and instrumental selections by the best local talent was rendered in their usual good form. The selection of a political representative and the most popular young lady furnished some amusement, and as expected produced a good financial result. A great many people in town are now definitely advised of what to expect for the remainder of their lives since having their fortunes told by a skilled professor of palmistry. Some valuable prizes were drawn at the lottery by fortunate ticket holders, the first prize, a very pretty lady's watch, being drawn for Gracie Walker. Refreshments were served, and the ball finally cleared for dancing which was kept up well into the short hours. We understand that the Web netted a respectable gain, and as the proceeds go to the hospital, the result is most satisfactory to all who took part in contributing to and enjoying the entertainment.

CAMPAIGN MEETING.

The meeting in Robertson's hall on Monday evening of the electors called by Mr. Oliver was a fitting finish to his opening campaign in this district. The hall was packed with an enthusiastic audience, composed of a large number of Oliver's supporters and a few conservatives. The gallery was filled with ladies who had a commanding view of the members of the sterner sex engaged in applauding their own particular choice.

M. McCauley, chairman of the Oliver committee, took the chair and introduced the speakers.

Mr. Oliver, who was received with such a round of applause as only the Young Albertans can give, said we were not fighting for somebody else's interests in this country, but for our own, and it was a fight for dear life. What was true of Edmonton was true of the whole of Alberta and the Territories. It seemed to him that this district and the Territories were of such vast importance to the Dominion that a policy for its benefit would be a good policy for the whole of Canada (applause). He was there to advocate not so much the policy of a particular party as a Northwest policy. (Cheers.)

He said that those who five here are charged in the first place with the development of the Territories and of Canada, then let them have a Northwest policy because that was their first necessity, and he came before them asking their support strictly as a Northwest man. (Loud cheers.) He wanted them to understand it was an independence of party not of principle that he asked for their votes. He wished to advance the welfare of the Territories and of the Dominion, and it seemed to him that could be best advanced by putting those interests before the interests of either party.

A policy exists for the purpose of carrying out a policy, therefore that party is entitled to support first only as far as its policy is in the interests of this country. He asked for their support for the liberal policy of tariff for revenue only, because that was the policy most in the interests of the people of the Territories, and particularly this part of the Territories. The protective policy of the conservative party had resulted in making manufacturers wealthy and impoverishing the farmers. In 1878 manufacturers were bankrupt, to-day they are millionaires.

The opening up of the Territories had been given as an excuse for the decrease in the value of farm lands in Ontario, because it was said people had emigrated from the eastern provinces to the Northwest. The fact was they had not had half as quarter of the immigration from the eastern provinces. If it could be proved they had come here it would be something in favor of the government policy. If that policy would not keep our people at home he wanted none of it. (Loud applause.) If the policy of the government was such as to induce people who saved money to invest in our country instead of hoarding it up it would be better. Mr. Oliver repeated his position in regard to any monopoly and strongly advocated a competitive road through the Cariboo via Edmonton to the Hudson Bay. He advocated a policy of conciliation in regard to Manitoba schools, which was really one of the policies of the government as shown by the sending a commission to Manitoba, and it had always been the policy of Mr. Laurier and the liberal party from the commencement. Mr. Oliver concluded by saying that while he was doing his best to do his best to do his best to win this election, it was for the people of Edmonton and district to do their best, and it was in their interests he was working and would always work if returned. Edmonton was the centre of the largest number of voters in the constituency. It was for them to look to the matter now they had the opportunity and to see they were successful. It was a matter of more than trivial interest. It was of the deepest interest to every man in this country and he asked them to do their best. He then resumed his seat amid deafening cheers.

J. R. Costigan thanked Mr. Oliver for the courteous treatment he had received at his hands in all the meetings. He again proclaimed himself a "flat-footed" liberal conservative and repeated his assurance against Mr. Oliver's independent position. Mr. Oliver had told them that farmers' produce had steadily fallen in price. He claimed that was due to over production in other countries. He again gave the figures about the decrease in value of farm lands, &c., and the savings of the people. They had no greater disadvantages here than in any other new country. He appealed to the conservatives to stand by the old party and the old flag. He considered the school question a mean and narrow one (applause). He hoped it would soon be out of politics. It would never have been a political issue had it not been for certain political mountebanks. He lauded Sir Charles Tupper to the skies and closed with an appeal to the conservatives to see to it that he was retained in power.

Mr. Oliver in reply said they did not care what were the reasons for the fall in prices. They knew manufacturers prices had not fallen. He did not promise to raise farmer's prices by legislation but the conservatives had, and had failed to keep their promise; and when asked to fulfil their promise they said it could not be done. The prices of farm lands included the buildings on them so Mr. Costigan's figures meant for nothing, as land values in their decrease carried the buildings with them in that decrease. The immigration had been to the States from Eastern Canada which Mr. Costigan admitted. The fact was that during the years of protection the immigration to the States from Canada had been agriculturalists. It was a notorious fact that the lands of the Northwest States had been peopled largely with Ontario farmers. The liberal party would introduce legislation for the improvement of the country which would induce people to invest their money for the improvement of the Northwest instead of hoarding it up. The trouble in the past had been that the Northwest had been represented by gentlemen who were in parliament for the express purpose of supporting a party, and the liberal party had been misinformed by them as to our requirements. He declared our immigration money had been wasted year after year and we had not had the immigration we would have had if we had been properly represented. (Hear, hear.) We hear a great deal about the school question and the position of the government, a little more common sense and less constitutional law would enlighten the people. (Laughter and applause.) Mr. Costigan seemed to think Sir Charles Tupper was not to be criticized, but even though he is Sir Charles Tupper he had not failed to draw a good salary for all his services. Referring to Mr. Costigan's candidature he asked Mr. Costigan if it was not a fact that the conservative convention only granted Mr. Cochrane their nomination on his signing a document agreeing to resign after two years if elected. Mr. Costigan admitted that such was the case as it was thought the constituency should be divided. "Then said Mr. Oliver," if his own party have not enough confidence in Mr. Cochrane to allow him to sit (if elected) for more than two years I ask the electors of Alberta to show Mr. Cochrane that they have no confidence at all in him. (Loud and prolonged applause.) The meeting closed with cheers for Oliver and the Queen.

THE NORTHERN CAMPAIGN.

It has been said there is not traffic enough for a compelling road. Was there traffic enough for the C. P. R.? It was built for the development of the country and we have a grand country here to develop. (Applause.) Between here and Saskatchewan we have the most fertile stretch of country in the Dominion. There is not a foot of railway through 500 miles of it between here and Prince Albert. You know the Cariboo mines are the richest in the known world and are 280 miles from the railroad. It cannot develop as the Kootenay is developing. There is a need for more roads for the development of the country. A railroad from the British Columbia coast through the Cariboo country and Jasper Pass, taking in Edmonton and Prince Albert, which would give us access to our natural markets and develop the fertile land east of us and open up the north. We are the people who need and want that road, but it is not the policy of the conservative government to assist it. Are you going to vote for that party? A voice "No" and another voice ("What about the Hudson's Bay Railway?") The liberal party has been blamed for there being no Hudson's Bay Railway. If that was the liberal party was at fault. If such was true I certainly would be opposed to them, because the very scheme I have laid before you of a road through the Jasper Pass would naturally be to the Hudson's Bay, and give the shortest possible route across the continent. I want you to understand that a road to Hudson's Bay is the ultimate object of any railroad competition in this country. I am not here to defend the liberal party in its faults and failings. I am here to state my position and to ask for your support although it has been boasted from a thousand platforms the last three weeks that the grand old, conservative party who has been in power for 18 years will be in another 18 years, if it can get there. It has had a majority of 40 to 60 in handling the money of the Dominion and you will all agree that it has not been stingy. But the Hudson's Bay Railroad has not suited them yet. If the conservative party are no further advanced in 18 years can the liberal party be blamed? The argument blaming the liberal party might do for children but not for sensible men. It is not what the liberal party have done, but whether the conservative party have done right. I say the fault of there being no Hudson's Bay Railroad is to be laid at the door of the conservative party, and we have no proof that the conservatives will do any better in future. That road has been made an issue for years, and the strongest pledges have been given in favor of it. It must be 10 years since 40 miles of it was built. It is the conservative party who is to blame and if we give them the opportunity they will continue their policy of holding back the development of the Northwest. I said I would give our opponents credit and I have given them, credit for working for the development of the Northwest for the benefit of their friends and that is why I say we should introduce a policy for the development of the northwest for the benefit of the people. I not ask for your votes because you are liberals, but rather choose to stand before you as a supporter of the liberal party on certain parts of their policy, but to differ from them on questions of principle when their policy is not for the benefit of this country. It is this country not the party I wish to benefit. If you elect a strictly party man he would not be in a position to advance the interests of this country in preference to those of his party. (Loud applause.) As long as he is a party man he cannot support your interests first in the manner an independent man could. There is another important question. The school question, and I don't allude to this to catch votes, but simply to define my position. At the same time you will understand that this question has been made as important one because an extra session of parliament was held last winter for the sole purpose of dealing with it. It is a question as to whether you agree with the policy of the premier or not. What stand has his party taken? You can take your choice of their stand on the remedial bill or the other stand in sending commissioners to Winnipeg. Whatever members of the party say the party's policy is to be judged by its actions, so that when Sir Charles Tupper sends commissioners to Winnipeg and brings in a remedial bill, both actions must be his policies. I would like to know in what position the government intend to stand. The first proposition is to introduce a new school system into Manitoba. The second, to make an arrangement with the Manitoba government and so alter the present Manitoba school act as to remove certain disabilities the Catholics are under. I want to deal with both policies separately. The remedial bill dictated to the Manitoba government what it should do. The liberal leader voted to give it the six months hoist. But the conservatives though trying to do justice to the Catholics of Manitoba voted against it and the wicked liberals were said to be going about like roaring lions to eat up the rights of the minority. Some liberals voted against the remedial bill because it was an interference with provincial rights, and others because it did not give back to the Catholics the position they formerly had. Liberals are said to be inconsistent for these two reasons. It seems to me that both reasons are good. The liberal party is one of justice and right and they were right in voting against interference with Manitoba. The fact is the bill was a bunkum proposition for the purpose of catching votes and the liberal leader and party were brave enough to vote against it. (Applause.) In order that there may be no misunderstanding of my position I say that I agree with the course followed by the liberal party. It was not a good bill and it was quite right to give it the hoist. The sending of commissioners to Manitoba was very different. It was a proposition to come to an arrangement. It did not purport to interfere with provincial rights, but to remedy certain grievances, which the Manitoba government were perfectly willing to remove on withdrawal of the remedial bill. So that when the government comes forward and says "we tried to do you justice by the remedial bill" the reply is that the Manitoba government accepted the proposition of the commissioners except one clause. The conservatives have tried to prove this question is difficult to settle. This is wrong. As soon as a reasonable proposition was made to Manitoba she was willing to make concessions but she would not do away with her school system to benefit the power at Ottawa who wanted to make political capital out of this question. The question could have been settled if their leader had not wanted to use it in this contest. The Dominion had bound their commissioners to certain propositions without any right to discussion which proves they did not want it settled till after the election. The Manitoba government would have come to terms if the commissioners from Ottawa had been given discretionary powers. Hugh John McDonald had said that it was the approaching provincial elections in Manitoba which made the Manitoba government refuse to settle. I say it was the approaching Dominion elections which caused the government of Ottawa to wish for no settlement. The liberal leader and party has had one and the same policy all along, and you should blame them at fault and give credit to those who deserve it. When it first came up the liberal leader said "it is a question not of law but of fact. I do not believe in a policy of coercion. I believe in a policy of conciliation." It was conciliation that was adopted when the commissioners were sent to Winnipeg and was nearly successful. I deny emphatically that Mr. Laurier ever said one thing in one place and another in another place. He said the same in Ontario as in Quebec. He said justice should be done and there is no need for coercion, and H. J. MacDonald is authority for the statement that Mr. Laurier's policy of conciliation was the one that will be successful, and therein is the inference that the remedial bill was an injustice. You know Sir Charles Tupper when he introduced the bill into the house said he would support the coercion of Manitoba to the last extremity. He and his orators have declared so all along and that the liberal party were opposed to coercion and I have never heard a liberal deny that charge. (Applause.) H. J. MacDonald wants to impose on the Manitoba people that Mr. Laurier is a coercionist. That talk may take in Ontario but never in Manitoba. Sir Charles Tupper on the other hand declares Mr. Laurier is not a remedialist. Mr. Laurier does not deny he is opposed to Sir Charles Tupper's course, but he never said and never will say that he will not remedy any grievance if it is in existence, but it has to be proved to exist. There is no more danger of the coercion of Manitoba, but if there is any danger it is to be credited to the conservative leader for the Hon. Wilfrid Laurier has proved himself a statesman, patriot and honest man. (Applause.) The conservative leader has been making a cry of the school question to catch votes, and Mr. Laurier has been trying to show it was never necessary and never will be. I would say further that it seems to me we should do our utmost to secure the development of the unbounded resources of our particular district. This question should engage our attention especially when we are only to have one representative. We certainly should send him pledged to do his best for the benefit of this great Territory. It appears that such a policy would be for the benefit of the whole Dominion. How can we in justice to our section send a man to the House of Commons who is not in a position to maintain his independence. Great projects of Atlantic steamers, trade with Australia and other parts are good, but the development of this Northwest is a more beneficial policy for Canada. We are living not in the past, but in the present and for the future and whatever policy you endorse now will last for five years. That is the question to be decided at the polls. Unless we have the assurance that this policy will be in our interests, it would be folly for us to support it. The premier's address does not mention the Northwest in the remotest degree. That being the case it seems to me that with the change of premiers and governments there has also been a change of policy in regard to the Northwest. On the platform submitted by the premier we must vote and we have nothing to expect from that manifesto in the Northwest. It is solely in the interests of the Northwest that I seek your votes. (Loud cheers.) J. R. Costigan, Q. C., was well received and commenced by ridiculing the possibility of a man being an independent liberal. He referred to speeches made by Mr. Oliver in Calgary and went into a lot of figures giving totals but no particulars. He indulged in occasional flights of rhetoric and spoke for two hours against time. During his talk he challenged Mr. Oliver to prove a statement made in Calgary that the government had bought off the C. P. R. monopoly clause for $15,000,000, and Mr. Oliver accepted the challenge. Regarding the school question Mr. Costigan went into details of the history of Manitoba schools, going back to 1870 and quoting from histories and blue books, until the audience became tired. The meeting closed soon after midnight with rounds of cheers for Oliver and the Queen.

FORT SASKATCHEWAN.

The election campaign has started in earnest. One of the largest meetings in the history of the country was held here on Friday, the 29th, to hear the liberal candidate, Mr. Frank Oliver.

The opposing candidate was also invited, but failed to appear, sending Mr. Costigan, of Calgary, as his representative, or proxy as his friends call him.

The chair was taken at 8:30 p. m. by Dr. Aylen, president of the liberal association, and he at once opened the meeting by calling on Mr. Oliver, who was received by the audience in the most enthusiastic manner. He thanked the meeting for its reception and proceeded to define his position on the live issues of the day especially as they concerned the district of Alberta. Referring to the tariff he showed to the entire satisfaction of the electors present the difference between the trade policies of the two political parties and the difference between theory and practice. While the conservative party raised the revenue by a high tariff for protection to protect manufacturing industries which did not increase the revenues of the country one cent. The tariff platform of the liberal party was a tariff for revenue only properly applied so as not to make the burden heavier on the farmers than on other classes of the community. Mr. Oliver also referred to the railway monopoly showing how unfairly the Territories were dealt with in this matter also illustrating the collusion existing between the government and the C. P. R. Referring to the school question which he declared one of the live issues of the hour he defined clearly his position on the matter showing the double faced attitude of the so-called liberal-conservative party on this matter, one policy for Ontario and one for Quebec provinces. He thanked the electors for their demonstration in his favor and for their almost unanimous support and took his seat amid much enthusiasm.

Mr. Costigan, who represented T. B. Cochrane the conservative candidate, taunted Mr. Oliver for calling himself an independent candidate, claiming it was no such thing for a candidate to do. He said Mr. Cochrane was a straight party candidate in every sense of the word being a "flat footed" conservative. This would be witty remark failed to arouse any enthusiasm, Mr. Cochrane realizing this then said Mr. Cochrane was independent enough. After dilating on the advantages of the national policy which he said had done so much to develop the country. He spoke at great length on the financial prosperity of the Dominion, stating that although farm lands in Ontario had decreased in value the buildings and stock in the country had increased, referring to the blue book to show the amount at deposit in the various banks of the Dominion and quoting many pages of statistics to try and prove his position. He then went on to show the alleged benefits of protection. His remarks on various items on the platform such as apples, prunes, sugar, machinery and other necessities of the farmer were not received with much favor by the audience. The question of apples brought a derisive cheer from the meeting at which Mr. Costigan corrected himself and said that in the Dominion many of the farmers came from Ontario and knew that in that province if the apple crop is an average one only they have to feed a large proportion to their hogs and therefore there is no need for protecting them. Speaking on the implement question Mr. Costigan blamed the farmers for the government's bad policy and told them the reason machinery cost so much was because it was allowed to lay out expensive in the weather. This remark which is akin to the usual advice given by government politicians and lawyers to the farmer was not well taken. To take up the time of the meeting Mr. Costigan (who seems to be imbued with the party policy of Monopoly) invited the audience to sleep by reading the school act from beginning to end. After taking the time of the meeting for two hours and thirty minutes he resumed his seat with the evident feeling that he had not only lost the support of the meeting but had prevented other and able men of his own party from addressing the audience which was anxious to hear them.

BEAVER LAKE (EAST).

The ice disappeared about the 14th. At present the lake is lower than at this time last year, but it is slowly rising.

Rev. E. C. Gallup, B. A., Presbyterian missionary, holds service here in the Presbyterian church every fortnight, at 4 o'clock Rev. Mr. Connell, Anglican, preaches every fortnight in Mr. Moody's house; and the Rev. A. Whiteside, Methodist, preaches in the Presbyterian church every fourth Sunday.

At the meeting held on the 2nd instant, which I alluded to in my last, the following officers of the Anglican parish of St. Albans were appointed: Minister's churchwarden, J. C. Morrison; people's warden, Henry Deby; vestry men, G. M. Steele, A. R. Moody, J. V. Kildahl, E. Bradley; auditors, J. V. Kildahl, F. G. Walker; vestry clerk, F. W. Fane.

There is quite an "exodus" from this settlement this spring. R. E. Steele and family left on the 21st for Calgary via Edmonton. Arthur Smith returned to the United States some time since. Harry Stewart, who was one of the sufferers from prairie fires last fall, came back lately and round up his affairs prior to leaving, and another party consisting of G. M. Steele, Sandy McAllister, and Donald McAllister, pulled out for the Kootenay district this week. All may return after a time.

SOUTH EDMONTON.

On Friday evening the 29th, inst. a large number of the members and friends of the South Edmonton Methodist church assembled at the residence of Mrs. Eassey to spend a social evening together. During the evening the following address was read to the Rev. H. A. Goodwin who is about to leave to attend college in his native province.

To the Rev. H. A. Goodwin, pastor of the Methodist church, South Edmonton.

We the members and adherents of the Methodist church, South Edmonton, desire, before you leave this town to express our appreciation of your services during the two years you have been pastor of our church. We have always found you a faithful pastor and feel assured that you have labored earnestly to extend the Kingdom of God, to restore the erring, to uphold the church and to guide sinners to their Saviour. We regret your departure from our midst and wish you abundant success in the ministry to which in the order of providence you have been called. Please accept this purse as a small token of our appreciation and esteem. May heaven's choicest blessings rest upon you, may you long be spared to our church and to the work to which God has called you, and when "we have fought the good fight, have finished the course" may pastor and people join in the fellowship of the church triumphant where farewells are never spoken and where parting is unknown.

Signed on behalf of the Methodist church South Edmonton. A. W. Toll Rec. Steward, Robert Fairburn, William Fowler, John Shields, Edgar Richardson Superintendent of Sunday school.

The Rev. Mr. McDonald of the Baptist church gave a kindly fraternal address before the assembly dispersed. The South Edmonton brass band appeared upon the scene and rendered some very choice selections. On Sunday evening a large congregation assembled in the Methodist church to hear Rev. Mr. Goodwin's farewell sermon. Pastor McDonald and his congregation united with the Methodist congregation at this farewell service.

RED DEER.

The political pot is beginning to simmer here in good earnest. Both conservative and liberal committees are in full blast and working hard. Tuesday, June 9th, will be a gala day for Red Deer, as the minister of interior accompanied by the conservative candidate will address the electors, while Mr. Oliver is expected on the same train, to hold meetings, at Springvale in the afternoon and at Red Deer in the evening.

We are informed that Ray L. Gaez of this place has received his commission as justice of the peace. This will fill a long felt want. One of our prominent citizens, Mr. A. C. Brumpton has left us, having sold out his interests and returned to Ontario. Quite a number of our young townsmen have left for the mountains, in search of fortune. We were treated to a splendid wara rain yesterday, which will do a great deal of good.
